Over the holidays growing up, I was always excited when I heard Aunt Sue was coming. I can still vividly picture her wide, genuine grin and wonderful personality--a mix of sincerity and light-heartedness. I remember hanging out in the kitchen with her helping to clean up from holiday cooking and feeling at ease and like I "belonged." I was looking forward to inviting her to our (eventual!) wedding, and I am so sad that she won't be there in body, but I know that her spirit will be at every future event, spreading cheer. She was and is loved.

I was fortunate to have the opportunity to have known Sue, if only for a short while. In the conversations we had, I learned just how much we shared our love of cats. I wish I had the opportunity for her to meet mine, she would have absolutely loved that. I wanted to bring one of mine over for her to meet, just so I could see the smile on her face. Her smile was big, bright, and beautiful. Lit up the entire room. My deepest condolences to Richard, her son, and her grandchildren.
